Earnings Press Release

"The pending transaction with GTCR and Elliott marks an exciting next chapter for CCC and our customers," continued Ramamurthy. "Together, we expect to accelerate the AI and agentic capabilities our customers want from us, expand the network at the center of our platform, and make long-term investments in innovation that help customers navigate growing complexity across the claims lifecycle. We believe this positions CCC to deliver even greater value to the insurance economy in the years ahead."

Social Media Post

Earlier this month, we announced a definitive agreement for CCC to be acquired by a consortium of private investment firms led by GTCR and including Elliott Investment Management L.P. They share our belief that sustained investment in technology and people is essential to delivering more value for customers. Together, we expect to accelerate the AI and agentic capabilities customers want, expand our network and keep investing in innovation across the claims and repair lifecycle.
